LONDON, May 9.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

WE hear that the right hon. the earl of Albemarle will shortly return to England.

May 11. The king of Prussia has the honour of being the first monarch in Christendom that has effected a reform in the law, by reducing it into a narrow compass, and rendering the administration of justice much cheaper and more expeditious; since which others have worked upon his plan, according as it could be adapted to the constitution or customs of their respective countries: Austria, Naples, Sweden, and Bavaria, have already copied the example of Prussia, and thereby delivered their subjects from the numberless inconveniences that arose by the obscurity and uncertainty of the law: And by the last advices from Moscow, it appears that the empress of Russia is going to do the same. The French too seem to be sensible of the necessity of such a reformation among them; but the present situation of their domestic affairs is not favourable for it. Could it be effected there, one might hope to see something of the same kind take place in Britain; for as we are so forward to imitate France in follies and vices, it might possibly then become fashionable to imitate her in this necessary and important article.

It is said, there are at least 3000 German protestants, actually shipped, or on the point of shipping themselves, for our plantations, this season.

By the last letters from Spain, the court is preparing all military affairs as fast as possible. Troops, men of war, artillery, and magazines, are at this time the only objects of attention and orders. The kingdoms of Catalonia and Valencia are full of troops, and where they are designed for excites the curiosity of the public. All the forts from Roses to Malaga, and the frontiers of Murcia, are in a state

Naples, April 16. Great diligence is used both in this kingdom and in Sicily, to complete the regiments of cavalry, which his majesty has ordered to be augmented. The new regiment of cavalry is actually complete. By means of these augmentations his majesty's cavalry will consist of 15,000, and the infantry of 40,000, including the several garisons; so that, if the circumstances of affairs should make it necessary, an army of 25 or 30,000 men may be sent into the field. It is imagined the court of Spain has made considerable remittances to support these levies, which in a time of peace appear very extraordinary.

Hanover, May 3. The number of horses lately bought up in this electorate, for the service of different powers, is more considerable than ever has been remembered, even in time of war.

London, May 14. His majesty's yachts are careening, according to annual custom; but it is a matter of doubt, whether his majesty will now visit his German dominions.

London, May 21. The several officers belonging to his majesty's forces in America, that for some time have been here, are to embark on board the Success, a ship of war, Capt. Ross, ordered for those parts.

ROMAN The regiments of Moldavia and Roumania, that were quartered in the neighbourhood of this capital, have received orders to march on Monday and Tuesday to the frontiers of Hungary, and have already taken the same route. Count Dandolo, our prime minister, has a long conference today with the Imperial and British ambassadors. Some persons lately arrived from the Ukraine mention a report the death of the Grand Seignior, which, if true, would at this juncture be a piece of intelligence of great importance.

London, April 15. The fleet which aimed and equipped in this port, with only for a favourable wind to sail. We are assured, that they are designed to cruise on the coast of this kingdom to destroy the Barbary corsairs.

London, May 21. On Saturday their graces the duke and duchess of Dorset arrived at their home in the Park, from the east. And on Sunday his grace was in his majesty at Kensington, and was most graciously received.

Albany, May 21. The hon. Hamilton, Esq. having returned a governor of Palatinate, the hon. Robert Hunter Morris, Esq. lately appointed, will embark at Plymouth in a few days, on board a man of war, for that colony.

The people of Georgia have obtained permission to open a trade to the West Indies.

Letters from the East Indies say, that the French, by their intrigues, have involved almost all the dominions of the Great Mogul in a war, and have introduced dissensions in several parts of Persia.

Paris, May 6. The agitation spread out here is now quite ready to put to rest, but it is thought, will not subside till towards the latter end of the month.

London, May 25. Thursday Thomas Clarke, Esq. of Hampshire, one of his majesty's counsellors, and member of the existing parliament for Litchfield in Cornwall was by his majesty appointed master of the rolls, in the room of the late Sir John Burdett, and had the honour of knighthood conferred on him.

There are several British ships taking in German passengers at Hamburg, for his majesty's American possessions.

We learn from Genoa, that they are very anxious about the falling of certain dominions, and the reduction of certain troops, which are conjectured to have in view the island of Corsica, where the malecontents have seized all the Genoese estates, set a price upon the marquis Grimaldi's head, and declared themselves a free people. The point is, to learn whether they have taken these steps in concert with any other nation.

If his majesty goes into Germany this summer, it is said, that there will be interview between him and the king of Denmark and Prussia at Seiden in Pomerania.

May 28. On Thursday last the hon. Arthur Dobbs, Esq. received his letters of appointment as governor of North Carolina, for which colony he will speedily embark.

The hon. col. York, envoy extraordinary to the Spanish court, will return soon to the Hague.

From the port of Long Beach, by his majesty's ship Pennic, a commodore Hugh Bonley, for his station at Newfoundland, and the lady sailed the success man of war, capt. Roper, for her station at Nova Scotia.

Two men of war's tenders are arrived in Dublin harbour, to enlist seamen, or able bodied landmen, for his majesty's service.

We are assured from various parts of the kingdom, that notwithstanding the continued severity of the weather, this spring they have the most promising hopes of a plentiful season in all respects as ever was known.

France has contracted with Sweden for building 4 no. ships, each of which is carry 45 guns.

Paris, May 25. An express arrived from Babelux has brought advice, that the famous Mr. William Maxwell has lately been severely injured the important and intricate affair of the barrier.

Vienna, May 11. The court received lately an express from Constantinople, the people very much to the contents of the dispatches.

Rouffien, May 10. After abundance of difficulty, and opposition, the mirces de la Tour Taxis, and comte de Ruffien have been admitted into the college of princes of the empire.

London, May 20. Letters from Liege advise, that the earl of Chesterfield passed thro' that city the 17th inst. in his way to Spa.

Yesterday Capt. Chre waited upon the hon. the directors of the East India company, and was presented by the chairman in the chair with a very rich sword.

It is said, that the Dutch have lately sent orders to the Dutch East India company, directing that all vessels bound from thence shall be armed with a force sufficient to oppose the Spanish galleons.

Last Monday morning died at Bath, John Wood, Esq. celebrated for his designs and skill in architecture, more particularly in that city and Bristol.

The French are said to have expended a prodigious sum in the East Indies, to secure an interest in the territory of the Great Mogul, who is a weak irresolute prince. His firm is actually engaged as a party in all their transactions, by influence of the fleet of Gallies, an artful and enterprising agent.

According to the last advices from Stockholm there seems to be some design of very great importance on the carpets. The speakers of the lower orders of the diet are in that city. A considerable body of troops is to be sent to the frontiers. The king's equerry is actually preparing, as is said, for a new tour into the provinces. It is to be as if they were preparing for some great event, but of what nature, or at what distance, whether in Sweden or some other country, we must leave time to discover.

The wife from Vienna, that they expect, with great instance, an account of what has passed lately at Constantinople, where some have expected a revolution, and others a civil war. Some say the revolution of the 1st inst. was more considerable than was represented in the last express. Some say new intrigues have been formed, the seraglio as all the grand vizier, the aga of the Janissaries, and all the old court. While there is some (for in truth it is no more) that Mohammed V. is deceased, in the 58th year of his age, and a new reign.

Frankfort, May 15. Letters from Augsburg advise, that the pope from the Empire was lately attacked near that city, by a man in disguise, who armed and murdered, who held a pistol to his head, and threatened to blow his brains out, unless he suffered his mail to be examined quietly. He then took out several letters, but meddled with none that had bills of exchange or money in them. A position was treated not long since in the same manner, on the frontiers of Bohemia. The device of robbing the post is charged with dispatches from court to court, is greatly practised in this age of golden letters, and in many countries the agents in such affairs, a careful and preferred, but a government reduced to support itself by such means, must needs be the enemy of mankind.

Yesterday there were 330 members of the honorable house of commons sworn in, and took their seats accordingly.

The affair of the free port in Holland will be likely to be concluded, notwithstanding the firmness of the late parliament, and Zealand having complied with the regulation.

Westminster, May 31. This day the new parliament met, and his majesty's commission, empowering his royal highness the duke of Cumberland and several lords therein named, to open and hold the said parliament, was read in the presence of both houses. Westminster, June 1. This day the two houses of parliament having again met, the commons presented to the lords commissioners the right hon. Arthur Onslow, Esq. whom they had chosen to be their speaker. And the lords commissioners having, in his majesty's name, approved their choice, the lord high chancellor made a speech to both houses, acquainting them, by his majesty's command, that his majesty has been pleased to give them this early opportunity of coming together, in order that certain parliamentary proceedings may be gone through, which his majesty judges will be for the satisfaction of his good subjects to have completed without loss of time. And that his majesty did not think proper now to lay before them any points of general business, reserving every thing of that nature to the usual time of their assembling in the winter.

London, June 3. The tale of Corsica in favour of a prince of the Bourbon family, it is said, is resolved on in the senate of Genoa. For certain political reasons, have prudently rejected the terms offered by the pope in behalf of a certain adventurer.

All new works erected at Dunkirk towards the sea, and all attempts to clear the port, are said to be infringements of the treaty of Utrecht—nonwithstanding any thing that may be said to the contrary.

London, June 4. The neighbourhood of the Tower, are haunts of these people, which ought to be narrowly inspected into. In the daytime both officers and recruits appear in diverse habits, particularly that of labourers; but at night this servile dress is thrown off, and the hours are spent in gallantry and mirth.

The reason of the resignation of the hon. James Hamilton, Esq. (son of the famous counsellor Andrew Hamilton, who pleaded so well on behalf of Zenger the printer of New York) governor of Pennsylvania, a native of that province, is said to be some dispute that lately arises between him and the proprietor.

We learn from Copenhagen, that several secret councils have been held lately in the king's presence, which are supposed to respect the present critical state of things in the North, as well as the approaching encampment of the king's forces.

We learn from Leghorn, that some persons arrived there lately from Corsica, report, that the malecontents have lately received a very considerable supply of powder and ammunition; and that they very confidently believe, in case a war breaks out in Italy, they shall be enabled to set up a prince of their own.

There is the greatest reason imaginable to believe that his majesty has taken a resolution to make a visit to his German dominions this summer, notwithstanding the usual orders on such occasions are not issued to his domesticks in general.

The earl of Chesterfield, it is said, intends to pay a visit to the court of Berlin, before he leaves Germany, a piece of intelligence that will afford large scope to the coffee-house politicians.

It is reported that a very considerable fleet will be ready this summer as a fleet of observation.

It appears by letters from Moscow and Vienna, that the members of the Northern triple alliance are using their utmost endeavours to prevent broils in Europe at least for a summer; and that as soon as there may be prospect of a lasting general peace, they will make fresh instances at the Hague, to get the States General to accede to the said alliance, which they think can be easily obtained, when no danger seems to be at hand.
